Charlotte Johnson

Dear Charlotte Johnson:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated November 27, 2021, in which you requested a document be removed from DOJ's website. On January 21, 2022, you explained that "[t]he contents of this letter contain issues which were discussed at a closed meeting and therefore should not be made public."

The document to which you refer is DOJ's February 27, 2009 letter written in response to your correspondence to DOJ in which you raised concerns regarding action taken by a governmental body. The letter is cited in DOJ's Public Records Law Compliance Guide, which includes a hyperlink to the letter.

While we appreciate you raising your concerns, DOJ respectfully declines to remove the February 27, 2009 letter from its website. The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998). Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Statutes, the common law, and the public records law balancing test, which weighs the public interest in disclosure of a record against the public interest in nondisclosure, provide such exceptions. Exceptions to disclosure should be narrowly construed to effectuate the law's purpose of ensuring government openness and transparency.

The only reason you provided for requesting the removal of the letter from DOJ's website was that the letter contains issues discussed during a closed session meeting of a governmental body. While the letter discusses the law regarding closed sessions, it does not include anything specific about what was discussed during a closed session. However, even if it did, that reason alone would not prohibit DOJ from posting the letter publicly, nor would it prohibit DOJ's disclosure of the letter in response to a public records request.

If DOJ were to receive a public records request for the letter, DOJ would disclose it for a number of reasons. First, citizen correspondence sent to DOJ and DOJ's responses to such correspondence are records subject to disclosure under the public records law. On a quarterly basis, DOJ posts its responses to open government-related correspondence on its website at https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/doj-responses-open-government-correspondence. Second, as explained above, under the public records law, records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying. Third, there is no statutory or common law requirement prohibiting disclosure of the letter, and under the balancing test, no public interests weighing in favor of nondisclosure have been identified that would outweigh the public interest in disclosure. Finally, the letter has been available publicly for a substantial length of time. The letter has been posted for approximately 13 years on DOJ's website and through the Wisconsin Public Records Law Compliance Guide, which cites and links to certain legally significant DOJ responses to correspondence.

Thank you for your correspondence and for raising your concerns. For the reasons explained above, DOJ respectfully declines your request to remove the February 27, 2009 letter from its website.

If you would like to learn more about the public records law, DOJ's Office of Open Government offers several open government resources through the Wisconsin DOJ website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/office-open-government). DOJ provides the full Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, and maintains the Public Records Law Compliance Guide on its website.

The information provided in this letter is provided pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.39 and does not constitute an informal or formal opinion of the Attorney General pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 165.015(1).

Michael Yaker
mike@woodjoiners.com

Dear Michael Yaker:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated February 3, 2022, in which you wrote, "Can you enlighten me, on the laws regarding voice mails?"

It is unclear what specific information you seek regarding voicemails. DOJ's Office of Open Government (OOG) works to increase government openness and transparency with a focus on the Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and the Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39. To the extent the information you seek is outside this scope, the OOG is unable to offer any assistance. However, we can provide you with some information about the public records law that you may find helpful.

The public records law authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The law defines a "record" as any material on which written, drawn, printed, spoken, visual, or electromagnetic information or electronically generated or stored data is recorded or preserved, regardless of physical form or characteristics, which has been created or is being kept by an authority. Wis. Stat. § 19.32(2). A record includes handwritten, typed, or printed documents; maps and charts; photographs, films, and tape recordings; tapes, optical disks, and any other medium on which electronically generated or stored data is recorded or preserved.

Whether material is a "record" subject to disclosure under the public records law depends on whether the record is created or kept in connection with the official purpose or function of the agency. See OAG I-06-09, at 2 (Dec. 23, 2009). Not everything a public official or employee creates is a public record. The substance or content, not the medium, format, or location, controls whether something is a record. State ex rel. Youmans v. Owens, 28 Wis. 2d 672, 679, 137 N.W.2d 470 (1965).

The public records law's definition of a record encompasses electronic records and communications, including voicemails. Voicemails received on an authority's telephone system or mobile phone are records, as are voicemails related to government business received on a personal telephone system or mobile phone by an authority's officer or employee.

Records retention is a subject that is generally related to, but different from, the access requirements imposed by the public records law. The public records law only addresses how long an authority must keep its records once an authority receives a public records request. Although the public records law addresses the duty to disclose records, it is not a means of enforcing the duty to retain records, except for the period after a request for particular records is submitted. See State ex rel. Gehl v. Connors, 2007 WI App 238, ¶ 15 n.4 (citing Wis. Stat. § 19.35(5)) (citation omitted). When a requester submits a public records request, the authority is obligated to preserve the requested records until after the request is granted or until at least 60 days after the request is denied (90 days if the requester is a committed or incarcerated person). Other retention periods apply if an authority receives written notice that the requester has commenced a mandamus action (an action to enforce the public records law).

Other than this, the public records law does not address how long an authority must keep its records, and the public records law cannot be used to address an authority's alleged failure to retain records required to be kept under other laws. Instead, record retention is governed by other statutes. Wisconsin Stat. § 16.61 addresses the retention of records for state agencies, and Wis. Stat. § 19.21 deals with record retention for local government entities. The general statutory requirements for record retention apply equally to electronic records, including voicemails. Most often, records retention schedules, created in accordance with these statutes, govern how long an authority must keep its records and what it must do with them after the retention periods end. These records retention schedules are based on the substance or content of a record and not the medium, format, or location of a record. The Wisconsin Public Records Board's website, http://publicrecordsboard.wi.gov/, has additional information on records retention.

If you would like to learn more about the public records law, DOJ's Office of Open Government offers several open government resources through the Wisconsin DOJ website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/office-open-government). DOJ provides the full Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, and maintains a Public Records Law Compliance Guide on its website.

I hope you find this information helpful. Thank you for your correspondence. We are dedicated to the work necessary to preserve Wisconsin's proud tradition of open government.

Robert Hammersley
[redacted]
Little Suamico, WI 54141

Dear Robert Hammersley:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 9, 2021, in which you enclosed a "supplementing argument to be added to the recent petition and legal memorandum in support of the Department of Transportation's right to remove: (1) the DOT-administratively applied PAC .02 BAC restriction, (2) removing [your] 2003 set-aside Arizona DUI criminal convictional record, and (3) removing [your] 1995 civil refusal judgment criminal convictional recorded artifact."

DOJ is also in receipt of a copy of your correspondence, dated March 23, 2021, to the Wisconsin Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) requesting the "status of the 6-26-2020 . . . letter for requested removal of a prior out-of-state DUI conviction . . . from [your] driving record." It also included a public records request for "[i]nformation regarding submitting the proper pro-se request for prior conviction record removal and/or constitutional challenge" to the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (DOT).

Additionally, DOJ is in receipt of your correspondence, dated April 5, 2021, enclosing supplements to your Writs of Mandamus regarding "Appeal No. 2018AP1022, Oconto County Case No. 95TR3265" and "Appeal No. 2020AP1548, Manitowoc County Case Nos. 97CT2218-220."

Finally, DOJ is in receipt of your correspondence, dated June 11, 2021 and January 7, 2022, in which you inquired as to the status of "two Writ of Mandamus Filings."

The Attorney General and DOJ's Office of Open Government (OOG) are committed to increasing government openness and transparency. The OOG works in furtherance of this with a focus on the Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and the Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39. The OOG is only authorized to provide assistance within this scope. Therefore, the OOG is unable to offer you assistance regarding the portions of your correspondence that discuss matters outside the scope of the OOG's responsibilities.

Additionally, DOJ cannot offer you legal advice or counsel concerning this issue as DOJ may be called upon to represent the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (DOT) and the Wisconsin Director of State Courts Office. DOJ strives to provide the public with guidance on the interpretation of our State's public records and open meetings statutes. However, DOJ must balance that role with its mandatory obligation to defend state agencies and employees in litigation pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 165.25(6). Where that statutory obligation is at play, DOJ has a conflict in providing advice on the same topic.

While DOJ is unable to offer you assistance regarding your matter, we can provide you with some general information about the public records law that you may find helpful.

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

The public records law "does not require an authority to provide requested information if no record exists, or to simply answer questions about a topic of interest to the requester." Journal Times v. City of Racine Board of Police and Fire Commissioners, 2015 WI 56, 55 (citation omitted); see also State ex rel. Zinngrabe v. Sch. Dist. of Sevastopol, 146 Wis. 2d 629, 431 N.W.2d 734 (Ct. App. 1988). An authority cannot fulfill a request for a record if the authority has no such record. While the public records law does not require an authority to notify a requester that the requested record does not exist, it is advisable that an authority do so.

The public records law's enforcement provisions provide several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a). Except for committed and incarcerated persons, an action for mandamus arising under the public records law must be commenced within three years after the cause of action accrues. Wis. Stat. § 893.93(1m)(a).

Alternatively, the requester may submit a written request for the district attorney of the county where the record is found, or the Attorney General, to file an action for mandamus seeking release of the requested records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(b). The Attorney General is authorized to enforce the public records law; however, he generally exercises this authority in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. As explained above, DOJ may be called upon to represent DOT and the Wisconsin Director of State Courts Office. Therefore, we respectfully decline to pursue an action for mandamus on your behalf.

Shaun McCrystal
shaun.mccrystal@uq.net.au

Dear Shaun McCrystal:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated July 4, 2020, in which you requested "an action for mandamus be brought asking a court to order release of the records . . . from a properly-made Wisconsin Open Records request which was denied by . . . the Calumet County Sheriff's Office."

The DOJ Office of Open Government (OOG) works to increase government openness and transparency with a focus on the Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and the Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39. While a portion of your correspondence pertained to the public records law, it also discussed a matter outside the scope of the OOG's responsibilities. As a result, we are unable to offer you assistance or insight regarding your concerns regarding alleged "possible [t]ampering with [p]ublic [r]ecords under WI Stat §946.72 and [m]isconduct in [p]ublic [o]ffice under WI Stat §946.12(4)." We can, however, provide you with some general information about the public records law that we hope you will find helpful.

The public records law authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Requested records fall into one of three categories: (1) absolute right of access; (2) absolute denial of access; and (3) right of access determined by the balancing test. Hathaway v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 1 of Green Bay, 116 Wis. 2d 388, 397, 342 N.W.2d 682 (1984). If neither a statute nor the common law requires disclosure or creates a general exception to disclosure, the records custodian must decide whether the strong public policy favoring disclosure is overcome by some even stronger public policy favoring limited access or nondisclosure. This balancing test determines whether the presumption of openness is overcome by another public policy concern. Hempel v. City of Baraboo, 2005 WI 120, ¶ 4, 284 Wis. 2d 162, 699 N.W.2d 551. If a records custodian determines that a record or part of a record cannot be disclosed, the custodian must redact that record or part of that record. See Wis. Stat. § 19.36(6).

Whether an investigation or litigation is ongoing and whether the confidentiality of the requested records is material to that ongoing investigation or litigation are factors that an authority may consider in applying the balancing test. Cf. Linzmeyer v. Forcey, 2002 WI 84, ¶¶ 30, 32, 39, 41, 254 Wis. 2d 306, 646 N.W.2d 811; Journal/Sentinel, Inc. v. Aagerup, 145 Wis. 2d 818, 824-27, 429 N.W.2d 772 (Ct. App. 1988); Democratic Party of Wisconsin v. Wisconsin Dep't of Justice, 2016 WI 100, ¶ 12, 372 Wis. 2d 460, 888 N.W.2d 584. An authority could determine that release of records while an investigation or litigation is in progress could compromise the investigation or litigation. Therefore, when performing the public records balancing test, an authority could conclude that the public interest in effectively investigating and litigating a case and in protecting the integrity of the current investigation or litigation outweighs the public interest in disclosing the requested records at that time. Id.; Wis. Stat. § 19.35(1)(a).

Pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b), "If an authority denies a written request in whole or in part, the requester shall receive from the authority a written statement of the reasons for denying the written request." Specific policy reasons, rather than mere statements of legal conclusion or recitation of exemptions, must be given. Pangman & Assocs. v. Zellmer, 163 Wis. 2d 1070, 1084, 473 N.W.2d 538 (Ct. App. 1991); Vill. of Butler v. Cohen, 163 Wis. 2d 819, 824-25, 472 N.W.2d 579 (Ct. App. 1991). In every written denial, the authority must also inform the requester that "if the request for the record was made in writing, then the determination is subject to review by mandamus under s. 19.37(1) or upon application to the attorney general or a district attorney." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b).

The public records law provides several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a).

Alternatively, the requester may submit a written request for the district attorney of the county where the record is found, or the Attorney General, to file an action for mandamus seeking release of the requested records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(b). The Attorney General is authorized to enforce the public records law; however, the Attorney General normally exercises this authority in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. As your matter does not appear to present novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern, DOJ respectfully declines to pursue an action for mandamus on your behalf.

Although DOJ is not pursuing an action for mandamus, I reached out to Calumet County Sheriff Mark Wiegert and made him aware of your concerns, and Sheriff Wiegert agreed to review your concerns.

You may also wish to contact a private attorney regarding this matter. The State Bar of Wisconsin operates an attorney referral service. The referral service is free; however, a private attorney may charge attorney's fees. You may reach the service using the contact information below:

Angela Arndt
[redacted]
Brandon, WI 53919
angelakarndt@gmail.com

Dear Angela Arndt:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated January 4, 2021, in which you wrote, "On December 21 [the Rosendale-Brandon School Board] had for the first time closing of the Brandon Middle School on their agenda, and after a brief discussion they decided to vote at the following meeting January 18." You said that after you called a school board member to ask why this was the first the community was hearing of this, you said you were informed "that previous discussions had been done in closed session" which you "believe is a violation of the open meetings law in Wisconsin."

The Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). All meetings of governmental bodies shall be held publicly and be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

The open meetings law requires that public notice of all meetings of a governmental body must be given by communication from the governmental body's chief presiding officer or his or her designee to the following: (1) the public; (2) to news media who have filed a written request for such notice; and (3) to the official newspaper (designated under Wis. Stat. §§ 985.04, 985.05, and 985.06) or, if there is no such paper, to a news medium likely to give notice in the area. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(1). In addition to these requirements, other statutes may also set forth the type of notice required for a meeting of a governmental body.

Public notice of every meeting of a governmental body must be provided at least 24 hours prior to the commencement of such a meeting. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(3). If, for good cause, such notice is impossible or impractical, shorter notice may be given, but in no case may the notice be less than two hours in advance of the meeting. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(3). Furthermore, the law requires separate public notice for each meeting of a governmental body at a time and date "reasonably proximate to the time and date of the meeting." Wis. Stat. § 19.84(4).

Public notice of a meeting must provide the "time, date, place and subject matter of the meeting, including that intended for consideration at any contemplated closed session." Wis. Stat. § 19.84(2). The notice must be in such a form so as to reasonably apprise the public of this information. Id.

Wisconsin Stat. § 19.85 lists exemptions in which meetings may be convened in closed session. Any exemptions to open meetings are to be viewed with the presumption of openness in mind. Such exemptions should be strictly construed. State ex rel. Hodge v. Turtle Lake, 180 Wis. 2d 62, 71, 508 N.W.2d 603 (1993). The exemptions should be invoked sparingly and only where necessary to protect the public interest and when holding an open session would be incompatible with the conduct of governmental affairs. "Mere government inconvenience is . . . no bar to the requirements of the law." State ex rel. Lynch v. Conta, 71 Wis. 2d 662, 678, 239 N.W.2d 313 (1976).

Every meeting must be initially convened in open session. At an open meeting, a motion to enter into closed session must be carried by a majority vote. No motion to convene in closed session may be adopted unless an announcement is made to those present the nature of the business to be considered at the proposed closed session and the specific exemption or exemptions by which the closed session is claimed to be authorized. Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1).

Notice of a contemplated closed session (and any motion to enter into closed session) must contain the subject matter to be considered in closed session. Merely identifying and quoting a statutory exemption is not sufficient. The notice or motion must contain enough information for the public to discern whether the subject matter is authorized for closed session. If a body intends to enter into closed session under more than one exemption, the notice or motion should make clear which exemptions correspond to which subject matter.

Furthermore, some specificity is required since many exemptions contain more than one reason for authorizing a closed session. For example, Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1)(c) provides an exemption for the following: "Considering employment, promotion, compensation or performance evaluation data of any public employee over which the governmental body has jurisdiction or exercises responsibility." Merely quoting the entire exemption, without specifying the portion of the exemption under which the body intends to enter into closed session, may not be sufficient. Only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting.

Under the open meetings law, the Attorney General and the district attorneys have authority to enforce the law. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). Generally, the Attorney General may elect to prosecute complaints presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. While you did not specifically request the Attorney General to file an enforcement action, nonetheless, DOJ respectfully declines to file an enforcement action on your behalf.

More frequently, the district attorney of the county where the alleged violation occurred may enforce the law. However, in order to have this authority, an individual must file a verified complaint with the district attorney. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). If the district attorney refuses or otherwise fails to commence an action to enforce the open meetings law within 20 days after receiving the verified complaint, the individual may bring an action in the name of the state. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(4). (Please note a district attorney may still commence an enforcement action even after 20 days have passed.) Such actions by an individual must be commenced within two years after the cause of action accrues. Wis. Stat. § 893.93(2)(a).

Michael Bailey

Bayfield, WI 54814

Dear Michael Bailey:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated December 22, 2020, regarding "a non-profit service corporation which 'receives at least some of its funding from public sources and it serves a public function.'" You requested guidance on the following two questions: 1) "Is access to closed meeting discussions regarding personnel/employment matters or financial considerations allowable under state law?" and 2) "If either personnel/employment or financial considerations are allowable, what protections or restrictions must be in place to preserve the rights and obligations of the service corporation?"

The DOJ's Office of Open Government (OOG) works to increase government openness and transparency with a focus on the Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and the Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39. While a portion of your correspondence pertained to the open meetings law, it also discussed a matter outside the scope of the OOG's responsibilities. As a result, we are unable to offer you assistance or insight regarding issues outside this scope. We can, however, provide you with some general information about the open meetings law that we hope you will find helpful.

The open meetings law acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). All meetings of governmental bodies shall be held publicly and be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

Wisconsin Stat. § 19.85 lists exemptions in which meetings may be convened in closed session. Any exemptions to open meetings are to be viewed with the presumption of openness in mind. Such exemptions should be strictly construed. State ex rel. Hodge v. Turtle Lake, 180 Wis. 2d 62, 71, 508 N.W.2d 603 (1993). The exemptions should be invoked sparingly and only where necessary to protect the public interest and when holding an open session would be incompatible with the conduct of governmental affairs. "Mere government inconvenience is . . . no bar to the requirements of the law." State ex rel. Lynch v. Conta, 71 Wis. 2d 662, 678, 239 N.W.2d 313 (1976).

Every meeting must be initially convened in open session. At an open meeting, a motion to enter into closed session must be carried by a majority vote. No motion to convene in closed session may be adopted unless an announcement is made to those present the nature of the business to be considered at the proposed closed session and the specific exemption or exemptions by which the closed session is claimed to be authorized. Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1).

Notice of a contemplated closed session (and any motion to enter into closed session) must contain the subject matter to be considered in closed session. Merely identifying and quoting a statutory exemption is not sufficient. The notice or motion must contain enough information for the public to discern whether the subject matter is authorized for closed session. If a body intends to enter into closed session under more than one exemption, the notice or motion should make clear which exemptions correspond to which subject matter.

Furthermore, some specificity is required since many exemptions contain more than one reason for authorizing a closed session. For example, Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1)(c) provides an exemption for the following: "Considering employment, promotion, compensation or performance evaluation data of any public employee over which the governmental body has jurisdiction or exercises responsibility." Merely quoting the entire exemption, without specifying the portion of the exemption under which the body intends to enter into closed session, may not be sufficient. Only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting.

It is unclear from your correspondence what closed session exemption or exemptions the body used to convene in closed session. There are exemptions under which discussions regarding certain employment and financial issues could be permitted. However, governmental officials must keep in mind that closed meeting exemptions are restrictive, not expansive. Therefore, only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting. Additional information on closed session exemptions may be found in the Open Meetings Law Compliance Guide available through DOJ's website.

If you would like to learn more about the open meetings law, DOJ's Office of Open Government offers several open government resources through the Wisconsin DOJ website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/office-open-government). DOJ provides the full Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and maintains an Open Meetings Law Compliance Guide on its website.

Thank you for your correspondence. We are dedicated to the work necessary to preserve Wisconsin's proud tradition of open government.

Allison Blackmer
[redacted]
Hilbert, WI 54129
allison@csahorizon.com

Dear Allison Blackmer:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 16, 2021, regarding your request for a recording of a Village of Harrison meeting. You wrote, "The clerk for the Village of Harrison failed to notify the Trustees that the tape recorder was broken. She recorded the open meeting on her personal cell phone." You "requested a copy of the recorded meeting and were told that since the recording is on the Clerk's personal phone, [you] do not have the right to have access to the recording." You asked, "Is this true, or am I able to request a copy of the recording via a FOIA request."

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, the Wisconsin state counterpart to the federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

As a best practice, to the extent possible, individuals working for an authority should use government devices and accounts solely for government-related work and personal devices and accounts solely for personal matters. However, nothing in the public records law prohibits an individual working for an authority from using a personal device or account, such as a personal cell phone, a personal computer, or a personal email account, to conduct official government business, although doing so can result in the creation of a "record" that is subject to disclosure under the public records law.

The public records law defines a "record" as any material on which written, drawn, printed, spoken, visual, or electromagnetic information or electronically generated or stored data is recorded or preserved, regardless of physical form or characteristics, which has been created or is being kept by an authority. Wis. Stat. § 19.32(2). A record includes handwritten, typed, or printed documents; maps and charts; photographs, films, and tape recordings; tapes, optical disks, and any other medium on which electronically generated or stored data is recorded or preserved; and electronic records and communications.

Whether material is a "record" subject to disclosure under the public records law depends on whether the record is created or kept in connection with the official purpose or function of the agency. See OAG I-06-09, at 2 (Dec. 23, 2009). Not everything a public official or employee creates is a public record. The substance or content, not the medium, format or location, controls whether something is a record. State ex rel. Youmans v. Owens, 28 Wis. 2d 672,679, 137 N.W.2d 470 (1965).

The fact that a record is subject to disclosure, however, does not necessarily mean an authority must disclose the record. Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Requested records fall into one of three categories: (1) absolute right of access; (2) absolute denial of access; and (3) right of access determined by the balancing test. Hathaway v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 1 of Green Bay, 116 Wis. 2d 388, 397, 342 N.W.2d 682 (1984). If neither a statute nor the common law requires disclosure or creates a general exception to disclosure, the records custodian must decide whether the strong public policy favoring disclosure is overcome by some even stronger public policy favoring limited access or nondisclosure. This balancing test determines whether the presumption of openness is overcome by another public policy concern. Hempel v. City of Baraboo, 2005 WI 120, ¶ 4, 284 Wis. 2d 162, 699 N.W.2d 551. If a records custodian determines that a record or part of a record cannot be disclosed, the custodian must redact that record or part of that record. See Wis. Stat. § 19.36(6).

If an authority denies a written request, in whole or in part, the authority must provide a written statement of the reasons for denying the written request. Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b). Specific policy reasons, rather than mere statements of legal conclusion or recitation of exemptions, must be given. Pangman & Assocs. v. Zellmer, 163 Wis. 2d 1070, 1084, 473 N.W.2d 538 (Ct. App. 1991); Vill. of Butler v. Cohen, 163 Wis. 2d 819, 824-25, 472 N.W.2d 579 (Ct. App. 1991). In every written denial, the authority must also inform the requester that "if the request for the record was made in writing, then the determination is subject to review by mandamus under s. 19.37(1) or upon application to the attorney general or a district attorney." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b).

Government employees who use personal phones, or personal accounts such as email, for government business should conduct a careful search of all relevant devices and accounts for responsive records when the authority for which they work receives public records requests. Additionally, government business-related records found on personal phones or personal accounts, are also subject to records retention requirements. Government employees should contact their agency's legal counsel with any questions regarding such requirements.

Based on the information provided in your correspondence, if the Village of Harrison meeting was recorded by the clerk while serving in the clerk's official capacity and for governmental purposes, such as for use in drafting meeting minutes, the recording of the meeting on the clerk's personal cell phone would be considered a record under the public records law. In such a case, it would be subject to disclosure under the public records law and subject to applicable records retention requirements. I am sending a copy of this correspondence to the clerk of the Village of Harrison for awareness of this issue, and I invite the clerk to contact our office with any questions.

The public records law provides several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a).

Alternatively, the requester may submit a written request for the district attorney of the county where the record is found, or the Attorney General, to file an action for mandamus seeking release of the requested records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(b). The Attorney General is authorized to enforce the public records law; however, the Attorney General normally exercises this authority in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. Although you did not specifically request the Attorney General to file an action for mandamus, nonetheless, we respectfully decline to pursue an action for mandamus on your behalf.

aczerech@gmail.com

Dear Andy Czerechowicz:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 3, 2022, regarding your recent communications with the Calumet County Sheriff's Office. You wrote, "There is no pending litigation in the Avery matter and the case should be considered in a closed status. Under the Compliance Guide, closed investigations should not have a blanket seal, and each individual request needs to be reviewed individually." You added, "I believe the burden of proof that releasing records might harm future litigation falls on the agency making the claim. . . . Can you clarify?"

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Requested records fall into one of three categories: (1) absolute right of access; (2) absolute denial of access; and (3) right of access determined by the balancing test. Hathaway v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 1 of Green Bay, 116 Wis. 2d 388, 397, 342 N.W.2d 682 (1984). If neither a statute nor the common law requires disclosure or creates a general exception to disclosure, the records custodian must decide whether the strong public policy favoring disclosure is overcome by some even stronger public policy favoring limited access or nondisclosure. This balancing test determines whether the presumption of openness is overcome by another public policy concern. Hempel v. City of Baraboo, 2005 WI 120, ¶ 4, 284 Wis. 2d 162, 699 N.W.2d 551. The records custodian must perform the balancing test analysis on a case-by-case basis. Id. ¶ 62. If a records custodian determines that a record or part of a record cannot be disclosed, the custodian must redact that record or part of that record. See Wis. Stat. § 19.36(6).

Whether an investigation or litigation is ongoing and whether the confidentiality of the requested records is material to that ongoing investigation or litigation are factors that an authority may consider in applying the balancing test. Cf. Linzmeyer v. Forcey, 2002 WI 84, ¶¶ 30, 32, 39, 41, 254 Wis. 2d 306, 646 N.W.2d 811; Journal/Sentinel, Inc. v. Aagerup, 145 Wis. 2d 818, 824-27, 429 N.W.2d 772 (Ct. App. 1988); Democratic Party of Wisconsin v. Wisconsin Dep't of Justice, 2016 WI 100, ¶ 12, 372 Wis. 2d 460, 888 N.W.2d 584. An authority could determine that release of records while an investigation or litigation is in progress could compromise the investigation or litigation. Under such circumstances, when performing the public records balancing test, an authority could conclude that the public interest in effectively investigating and litigating a case and in protecting the integrity of the current investigation or litigation outweighs the public interest in disclosing the requested records at that time. Likewise, a change in the status of an investigation or litigation would be a factor considered by a records custodian in applying the balancing test.

Pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b), "If an authority denies a written request in whole or in part, the requester shall receive from the authority a written statement of the reasons for denying the written request." Specific policy reasons, rather than mere statements of legal conclusion or recitation of exemptions, must be given. Pangman & Assocs. v. Zellmer, 163 Wis. 2d 1070, 1084, 473 N.W.2d 538 (Ct. App. 1991); Vill. of Butler v. Cohen, 163 Wis. 2d 819, 824-25, 472 N.W.2d 579 (Ct. App. 1991). In every written denial, the authority must also inform the requester that "if the request for the record was made in writing, then the determination is subject to review by mandamus under s. 19.37(1) or upon application to the attorney general or a district attorney." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b).

The public records law provides several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a).

Christopher Hunter
[redacted]
Manitowoc, WI 54220

Dear Christopher Hunter:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated December 4, 2020, regarding your public records request to the Manitowoc County Sheriff's Office. You wrote that you "received an email of denial . . . preventing [you] from accessing the video." You asked DOJ to "investigate."

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

First, at the time of your correspondence to DOJ, you were incarcerated at the Manitowoc County Jail. Please note that if you were incarcerated at the time of your public records request to the Manitowoc County Sheriff's Office, your right to request records under the public records law is limited to records that contain specific references to yourself or your minor children and are otherwise accessible to you by law. See Wis. Stat. § 19.32(1c) and (3). If the records you requested pertain to you or your minor children, you may request them pursuant to the public records law. However, under the public records law, certain information may still be redacted from the records.

Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Requested records fall into one of three categories: (1) absolute right of access; (2) absolute denial of access; and (3) right of access determined by the balancing test. Hathaway v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 1 of Green Bay, 116 Wis. 2d 388, 397, 342 N.W.2d 682 (1984). If neither a statute nor the common law requires disclosure or creates a general exception to disclosure, the records custodian must decide whether the strong public policy favoring disclosure is overcome by some even stronger public policy favoring limited access or nondisclosure. This balancing test determines whether the presumption of openness is overcome by another public policy concern. Hempel v. City of Baraboo, 2005 WI 120, ¶ 4, 284 Wis. 2d 162, 699 N.W.2d 551. If a records custodian determines that a record or part of a record cannot be disclosed, the custodian must redact that record or part of that record. See Wis. Stat. § 19.36(6).

In denying your request, the Manitowoc County Sheriff's Office cited the pending status of the case. Whether an investigation or litigation is ongoing and whether the confidentiality of the requested records is material to that ongoing investigation or litigation are factors that an authority may consider in applying the balancing test. Cf. Linzmeyer v. Forcey, 2002 WI 84, ¶¶ 30, 32, 39, 41, 254 Wis. 2d 306, 646 N.W.2d 811; Journal/Sentinel, Inc. v. Aagerup, 145 Wis. 2d 818, 824-27, 429 N.W.2d 772 (Ct. App. 1988); Democratic Party of Wisconsin v. Wisconsin Dep't of Justice, 2016 WI 100, ¶ 12, 372 Wis. 2d 460, 888 N.W.2d 584. An authority could determine that release of records while an investigation or litigation is in progress could compromise the investigation or litigation. Therefore, when performing the public records balancing test, an authority could conclude that the public interest in effectively investigating and litigating a case and in protecting the integrity of the current investigation or litigation outweighs the public interest in disclosing the requested records at that time. Id.; Wis. Stat. § 19.35(1)(a).

Pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b), "If an authority denies a written request in whole or in part, the requester shall receive from the authority a written statement of the reasons for denying the written request." Specific policy reasons, rather than mere statements of legal conclusion or recitation of exemptions, must be given. Pangman & Assocs. v. Zellmer, 163 Wis. 2d 1070, 1084, 473 N.W.2d 538 (Ct. App. 1991); Vill. of Butler v. Cohen, 163 Wis. 2d 819, 824-25, 472 N.W.2d 579 (Ct. App. 1991). In every written denial, the authority must also inform the requester that "if the request for the record was made in writing, then the determination is subject to review by mandamus under s. 19.37(1) or upon application to the attorney general or a district attorney." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b).

The public records law provides several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. See Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a). To obtain a writ of mandamus, the requester must establish four things: "(1) the petitioner has a clear legal right to the records sought; (2) the government entity has a plain legal duty to disclose the records; (3) substantial damages would result if the petition for mandamus was denied; and (4) the petitioner has no other adequate remedy at law." Watton v. Hegerty, 2008 WI 74, ¶ 8, 311 Wis. 2d 52, 751 N.W.2d 369.

It is important to note that the public records law states that no action for mandamus may be commenced by an incarcerated person later than 90 days after the date the request was denied. See Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1m). Incarcerated individuals who seek mandamus must also exhaust their administrative remedies first before filing an action under Wis. Stat. § 19.37. See Wis. Stat. § 801.07(7); Moore v. Stahowiak, 212 Wis. 2d 744, 749-50, 569 N.W.2d 70 (Ct. App. 1997). For requesters who are not committed or incarcerated, an action for mandamus arising under the public records law must be commenced within three years after the cause of action accrues. See Wis. Stat. § 893.90(2).

Alternatively, the requester may submit a written request for the district attorney of the county where the record is found, or the Attorney General, to file an action for mandamus seeking release of the requested records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(b). The Attorney General is authorized to enforce the public records law; however, he generally exercises this authority only in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. Mecquon Jones, #402774
Fox Lake Correctional Institution
Post Office Box 200
Fox Lake, WI 53933-0200

Dear Mecquon Jones:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated December 8, 2020, regarding your public records request to the Racine Police Department. You asked DOJ to "bring an Action of Mandamus to compel the release of documents related to Incident Report Number: 16-017435 and State v. Mecquon J. Jones Case Number: 16-CF-620 and enforcement of penalties."

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

First, please note that as an individual who is currently incarcerated, your right to request records under the public records law is limited to records that contain specific references to yourself or your minor children and are otherwise accessible to you by law. See Wis. Stat. § 19.32(1c) and (3). If the records you requested pertain to you or your minor children, you may request them pursuant to the public records law. However, under the public records law, certain information may still be redacted from the records.

Records are presumed to be open to public inspection and copying, but there are exceptions. Wis. Stat. § 19.31. Requested records fall into one of three categories: (1) absolute right of access; (2) absolute denial of access; and (3) right of access determined by the balancing test. Hathaway v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 1 of Green Bay, 116 Wis. 2d 388, 397, 342 N.W.2d 682 (1984). If neither a statute nor the common law requires disclosure or creates a general exception to disclosure, the records custodian must decide whether the strong public policy favoring disclosure is overcome by some even stronger public policy favoring limited access or nondisclosure. This balancing test determines whether the presumption of openness is overcome by another public policy concern. Hempel v. City of Baraboo, 2005 WI 120, ¶ 4, 284 Wis. 2d 162, 699 N.W.2d 551. If a records custodian determines that a record or part of a record cannot be disclosed, the custodian must redact that record or part of that record. See Wis. Stat. § 19.36(6).

You provided a copy of the City Attorney's Office's acknowledgement of receipt of your public records request. This letter stated, "Please be advised that the City is currently processing a large number of public records requests, and they are being processed in the order that they are received." The public records law does not require a response to a public records request within a specific timeframe. In other words, after a request is received, there is no set deadline by which the authority must respond. However, the law states that upon receipt of a public records request, the authority "shall, as soon as practicable and without delay, either fill the request or notify the requester of the authority's determination to deny the request in whole or in part and the reasons therefor." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(a). A reasonable amount of time for a response "depends on the nature of the request, the staff and other resources available to the authority to process the request, the extent of the request, and other related considerations." WIREdata, Inc. v. Vill. of Sussex, 2008 WI 69, ¶ 56, 310 Wis. 2d 397, 751 N.W.2d 736; see Journal Times v. Police & Fire Comm'rs Bd., 2015 WI 56, ¶ 85, 362 Wis. 2d 577, 866 N.W.2d 563 (an authority "can be swamped with public records requests and may need a substantial period of time to respond to any given request").

Pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b), "If an authority denies a written request in whole or in part, the requester shall receive from the authority a written statement of the reasons for denying the written request." Specific policy reasons, rather than mere statements of legal conclusion or recitation of exemptions, must be given. Pangman & Assocs. v. Zellmer, 163 Wis. 2d 1070, 1084, 473 N.W.2d 538 (Ct. App. 1991); Vill. of Butler v. Cohen, 163 Wis. 2d 819, 824-25, 472 N.W.2d 579 (Ct. App. 1991). In every written denial, the authority must also inform the requester that "if the request for the record was made in writing, then the determination is subject to review by mandamus under s. 19.37(1) or upon application to the attorney general or a district attorney." Wis. Stat. § 19.35(4)(b).

The public records law provides several remedies for a requester dissatisfied with an authority's response, or lack of response, to a public records request. A requester may file an action for mandamus, with or without an attorney, asking a court to order release of the records. See Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(a). To obtain a writ of mandamus, the requester must establish four things: "(1) the petitioner has a clear legal right to the records sought; (2) the government entity has a plain legal duty to disclose the records; (3) substantial damages would result if the petition for mandamus was denied; and (4) the petitioner has no other adequate remedy at law." Watton v. Hegerty, 2008 WI 74, ¶ 8, 311 Wis. 2d 52, 751 N.W.2d 369.

It is important to note that the public records law states that no action for mandamus may be commenced by an incarcerated person later than 90 days after the date the request was denied. See Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1m). Incarcerated individuals who seek mandamus must also exhaust their administrative remedies first before filing an action under Wis. Stat. § 19.37. See Wis. Stat. § 801.07(7); Moore v. Stahowiak, 212 Wis. 2d 744, 749-50, 569 N.W.2d 70 (Ct. App. 1997). For requesters who are not committed or incarcerated, an action for mandamus arising under the public records law must be commenced within three years after the cause of action accrues. See Wis. Stat. § 893.90(2).

Alternatively, the requester may submit a written request for the district attorney of the county where the record is found, or the Attorney General, to file an action for mandamus seeking release of the requested records. Wis. Stat. § 19.37(1)(b). Along with your correspondence, you included your request to the Racine County District Attorney asking for a mandamus action to be filed. The Attorney General is authorized to enforce the public records law; however, the Attorney General normally exercises this authority in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. Although you did not specifically request the Attorney General to file an action for mandamus, nonetheless, DOJ respectfully declines to pursue an action for mandamus on your behalf.

Lori Klonowski Cooley

Stanley, WI 54768
dlcooley@centurylink.net

Dear Lori Klonowski Cooley:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 7, 2021, in which you wrote, "I would like to report a violation of open meeting laws by the city of Stanley Common Council. I attended [t]he March 1st meeting, upon exit I found the main entrance to the fire station (where the meetings are typically held) to be locked. They were unlocked when I got there, but apparently someone locked them during the meeting."

The Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). To that end, the law requires that "all meetings of all state and local governmental bodies shall be publicly held in places reasonably accessible to members of the public and shall be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law." Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

Generally, a governmental body must meet in a place that provides reasonable public access and may not systematically exclude or arbitrarily refuse admittance to an individual. State ex rel. Badke v. Vill. Bd. Of Vill. of Greendale, 173 Wis. 2d 553, 494 N.W.2d 408 (1993). A governmental body should ensure that the public has access to the meeting for its duration. Whether a meeting place is reasonably accessible depends on the facts in each individual case.

Based on the limited information provided in your correspondence, it is unclear when the doors to the fire station became locked and what the circumstances were that led to the doors being locked. If the doors were locked intentionally due to safety or security concerns, the governmental body should find an alternative to ensuring both safety and security and public access for the duration of the meeting, perhaps by placing law enforcement or security personnel at the door. If the doors were locked unintentionally, the governmental body should take steps to correct the issue and prevent it from occurring again.

Under the open meetings law, the Attorney General and the district attorneys have authority to enforce the law. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). Generally, the Attorney General may elect to prosecute complaints presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. While you did not specifically request the Attorney General to file an enforcement action, nonetheless, we respectfully decline to file an enforcement action on your behalf.

More frequently, the district attorney of the county where the alleged violation occurred may enforce the law. However, in order to have this authority, an individual must file a verified complaint with the district attorney. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). For further information, please the Open Meetings Law Compliance Guide and Wis. Stat. § 19.97. Appendix B of the Open Meetings Law Compliance Guide provides a template for a verified open meetings law complaint. If the district attorney refuses or otherwise fails to commence an action to enforce the open meetings law within 20 days after receiving the verified complaint, the individual may bring an action in the name of the state. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(4). (Please note a district attorney may still commence an enforcement action even after 20 days have passed.) Such actions by an individual must be commenced within two years after the cause of action accrues. Wis. Stat. § 893.93(2)(a).

Cambria Mueller
[redacted]
Egg Harbor, WI 54209
cambriamueller@gmail.com

Dear Cambria Mueller:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated January 8 and 19, 2021, regarding your public records request to the Joint Village and Town of Egg Harbor Fire Commission for closed session minutes. You wrote, "The minutes only cover the commission going into and out of closed session; there is no record of what was discussed, or even what specifically they were discussing under the statutory exemption they cite which every time is . . . 19.85(1)(c)." You asked, "Does this satisfy the requirements of the open meetings law?" You also asked, "[D]oes Wisconsin require or recommend that closed sessions be recorded[?]"

The Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). All meetings of governmental bodies shall be held publicly and be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

In an effort to increase transparency, DOJ recommends that governmental bodies keep minutes of all meetings. However, there is no requirement under the open meetings law for a governmental body to do so. The open meetings law only requires a governmental body to create and preserve a record of all motions and roll-call votes at its meetings. Wis. Stat. § 19.88(3). This requirement applies to both open and closed sessions. See De Moya Correspondence (June 17, 2009). Written minutes are the most common method used to comply with the requirement, but they are not the only permissible method. It can also be satisfied if the motions and roll-call votes are recorded and preserved in some other way, such as on a tape recording. See I-95-89 (Nov. 13, 1989).

Thus, so long as the body creates and preserves a record of all motions and roll-call votes, the Wis. Stat. § 19.88(3) requirement is satisfied, and the open meetings law does not require the body to take more formal or detailed minutes of other aspects of the meeting. Other statutes outside the open meetings law, however, may prescribe particular minute-taking requirements for certain governmental bodies and officials that go beyond what is required by the open meetings law. I-20-89 (Mar. 8, 1989). See, e.g., Wis. Stat. §§ 59.23(2)(a) (county clerk); 60.33(2)(a) (town clerk); 61.25(3) (village clerk); 62.09(11)(b) (city clerk); 62.13(5)(i) (police and fire commission); 66.1001(4)(b) (plan commission); 70.47(7)(bb) (board of review).

Regarding closed sessions, Wis. Stat. § 19.85 lists exemptions in which meetings may be convened in closed session. Any exemptions to open meetings are to be viewed with the presumption of openness in mind. Such exemptions should be strictly construed. State ex rel. Hodge v. Turtle Lake, 180 Wis. 2d 62, 71, 508 N.W.2d 603 (1993). The exemptions should be invoked sparingly and only where necessary to protect the public interest and when holding an open session would be incompatible with the conduct of governmental affairs. "Mere government inconvenience is . . . no bar to the requirements of the law." State ex rel. Lynch v. Conta, 71 Wis. 2d 662, 678, 239 N.W.2d 313 (1976).

Every meeting must be initially convened in open session. At an open meeting, a motion to enter into closed session must be carried by a majority vote. No motion to convene in closed session may be adopted unless an announcement is made to those present the nature of the business to be considered at the proposed closed session and the specific exemption or exemptions by which the closed session is claimed to be authorized. Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1).

Notice of a contemplated closed session (and any motion to enter into closed session) must contain the subject matter to be considered in closed session. Merely identifying and quoting a statutory exemption is not sufficient. The notice or motion must contain enough information for the public to discern whether the subject matter is authorized for closed session. If a body intends to enter into closed session under more than one exemption, the notice or motion should make clear which exemptions correspond to which subject matter.

Furthermore, some specificity is required since many exemptions contain more than one reason for authorizing a closed session. For example, Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1)(c) provides an exemption for the following: "Considering employment, promotion, compensation or performance evaluation data of any public employee over which the governmental body has jurisdiction or exercises responsibility." Merely quoting the entire exemption, without specifying the portion of the exemption under which the body intends to enter into closed session, may not be sufficient. Only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting.

Moreover, governmental officials must keep in mind that closed meeting exemptions are restrictive, not expansive. Therefore, only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting

Under the open meetings law, the Attorney General and the district attorneys have authority to enforce the law. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). Generally, the Attorney General may elect to prosecute complaints presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. While you did not specifically request the Attorney General to file an enforcement action, nonetheless, we respectfully decline to file an enforcement action on your behalf.

More frequently, the district attorney of the county where the alleged violation occurred may enforce the law. However, in order to have this authority, an individual must file a verified complaint with the district attorney. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). If the district attorney refuses or otherwise fails to commence an action to enforce the open meetings law within 20 days after receiving the verified complaint, the individual may bring an action in the name of the state. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(4). (Please note a district attorney may still commence an enforcement action even after 20 days have passed.) Such actions by an individual must be commenced within two years after the cause of action accrues. Wis. Stat. § 893.93(2)(a).

Monica Weitkuhn
meweitkuhn@yahoo.com

Dear Monica Weitkuhn:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 16, 2021, regarding your public records request to the City of West Allis. You wrote, "[T]hey are, once again, charging such a high fee that it makes it impossible for me (and most of the general public I'm sure) to afford the public records." You believe the "fees of over $70 an hour" and the "hours to locate the records" are punitive. You "would really like some feedback from [DOJ] on this matter."

The Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39, authorizes requesters to inspect or obtain copies of "records" created or maintained by an "authority." The purpose of the public records law is to shed light on the workings of government and the official acts of public officers and employees. Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Waunakee Cmty. Sch. Dist., 221 Wis. 2d 575, 582, 585 N.W.2d 726 (Ct. App. 1998).

Under the public records law, "[A]n authority may charge a fee not exceeding the actual, necessary, and direct costs of four specific tasks: (1) 'reproduction and transcription'; (2) 'photographing and photographic processing'; (3) 'locating'; and (4) 'mailing or shipping.'" Milwaukee Journal Sentinel v. City of Milwaukee, 2012 WI 65, ¶ 54, 341 Wis. 2d 607, 815 N.W.2d 367 (citation omitted) (emphasis in original). The amount of such fees may vary depending on the authority. However, an authority may not profit from complying with public records requests. WIREdata, Inc. v. Vill. of Sussex, 2008 WI 69, ¶¶ 103, 107, 310 Wis. 2d 397, 751 N.W.2d 736 (an authority may not profit from its response to a public records request but may recoup all of its actual costs). An authority may choose to provide copies of a requested record without charging fees or by reducing fees where an authority determines that waiver or reduction of the fee is in the public interest. Wis. Stat. § 19.35(3)(e).

The law permits an authority to impose a fee for locating records if the cost is $50.00 or more. Wis. Stat. § 19.35(3)(c). An authority may require a requester prepay any such fees if the total amount exceeds $5.00. Wis. Stat. § 19.35(3)(f). Generally, the rate for an actual, necessary, and direct charge for staff time should be based on the pay rate of the lowest paid employee capable of performing the task. For more information on permissible fees, please see the Office of Open Government Advisory: Charging Fees under the Wisconsin Public Records Law, which was issued on August 8, 2018 and can be found on DOJ's website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/news-releases/office-open-government-advisory-charging-fees-under-wisconsin-public-records-law).

Regarding OOG's fee advisory and DOJ's own fee schedule, the advisory summarized the fees permitted under the public records law, particularly copying and location fees. By way of example, the advisory highlighted DOJ's then-recent update to its public records fee schedule and recommended that other authorities similarly re-evaluate their copying fees. The advisory made clear that each authority's actual, necessary, and direct costs of reproduction may vary. Authorities can use DOJ's published fee schedule as guidance and the OOG can offer assistance to any authority in developing a methodology for determining reproduction fees. However, the purpose of the advisory was not to mandate the fee amounts that authorities must charge. Neither DOJ nor the attorney general has statutory authority to do so. See Cardamone Correspondence (March 28, 2019).

The OOG also encourages authorities and requesters to maintain an open line of communication. This helps to avoid misunderstandings between an authority and a requester. It is also helpful in resolving issues such as those related to fees. If a requester is concerned about potential fees, it may be helpful that he or she express such concerns in the request. For example, a requester may ask an authority to contact the requester if the authority anticipate fees will exceed a certain dollar amount. If the fees are anticipated to exceed a certain dollar amount that the requester sets forth, the authority could then contact the requester to inquire as to whether the requester desires to limit the scope or timeframe of the request in order to reduce the cost.

Similarly, as a best practice, an authority should implement a policy in which they notify requesters if they anticipate fees will exceed a certain amount. The authority's anticipated fees can be expressed in a letter requesting prepayment under Wis. Stat. § 19.35(3)(f) or can be communicated to the requester directly in some other way before the request is fulfilled.

I am sending a copy of this correspondence to West Allis City Attorney Kail Decker for awareness of this issue. I invite Attorney Decker to contact our office with any questions.

If you would like to learn more about the public records law, DOJ's Office of Open Government offers several open government resources through the Wisconsin DOJ website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/office-open-government). Dear Sharon Yoho:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated February 11, 2021, regarding the open meetings law. You wrote, "Our city council signed an agreement with a group, Lakeside Forward LLC, which gives the group the right to make decisions and recommendations regarding our city park, Lakeside Park. This task would normally fall to our Parks Advisory Board which is subject to open meeting regulations." You continued, "The new management team created has been meeting weekly for about 2 months. No agendas, no minutes, and no access for the public." You asked if these "meetings should have been open to the public."

The Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). All meetings of governmental bodies shall be held publicly and be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

The open meetings law applies to every meeting of a governmental body. A "governmental body" is defined as:

> [A] state or local agency, board, commission, council, department or public body corporate and politic created by constitution, statute, ordinance, rule or order; a governmental or quasi-governmental corporation except for the Bradley Center sports and entertainment corporation; a local exposition district under subch. II of ch. 229; a long-term care district under s. 46.2895; or a formally constituted subunit of any of the foregoing, but excludes any such body or committee or subunit of such body which is formed for or meeting for the purpose of collective bargaining under subch. I, IV, V, or VI of ch. 111.

Wis. Stat. § 19.82(1). The list of entities is broad enough to include essentially any governmental entity, regardless of what it is labeled. Purely advisory bodies are subject to the law, even though they do not possess final decision-making power, as long as they are created by constitution, statute, ordinance, rule, or order. See State v. Swanson, 92 Wis. 2d 310, 317, 284 N.W.2d 655 (1979). An entity that fits within the definition of governmental body must comply with the requirements of the open meetings law.

Additionally, under the open meetings law, a "formally constituted subunit" of a governmental body is itself a "governmental body" within the definition in Wis. Stat. § 19.82(1). A subunit is a separate, smaller body created by a parent body and composed exclusively of members of the parent body. 74 Op. Att'y Gen. 38, 40 (1985). Groups that include both members and non-members of a parent body, however, are not "subunits" of the parent body.

The definition of a governmental body includes a "quasi-governmental corporation" which is not defined in the statutes. The Wisconsin Supreme Court discussed the definition of "quasi-governmental corporation" in State v. Beaver Dam Area Development Corp. ("BDADC"). State v. Beaver Dam Area Dev. Corp., 2008 WI 90, 312 Wis. 2d 84, 752 N.W.2d 295. In that decision, the Court held that a "quasi-governmental corporation" does not have to be created by the government or be per se governmental, but rather is a corporation that significantly resembles a governmental corporation in function, effect, or status. Id. ¶¶ 33-36. The Court further held that each case must be decided on its own particular facts, under the totality of the circumstances. The Court set forth a non-exhaustive list of factors to be examined in determining whether a particular corporation sufficiently resembles a governmental corporation to be deemed quasi-governmental, while emphasizing that no single factor is outcome determinative. Id. ¶¶ 7-8, 63 n.14, and 79. The factors set out by the Court in BDADC fall into five basic categories: (1) the extent to which the private corporation is supported by public funds; (2) whether the private corporation serves a public function and, if so, whether it also has other, private functions; (3) whether the private corporation appears in its public presentations to be a governmental entity; (4) the extent to which the private corporation is subject to governmental control; and (5) the degree of access that government bodies have to the private corporation's records. Id. ¶ 62.

Based on the limited information you provided in your correspondence, DOJ cannot properly evaluate whether Lakeside Forward LLC is a "governmental body" as defined in Wis. Stat. § 19.82(1), including whether it is a "quasi-governmental corporation" as discussed in the BDADC case, and, therefore, subject to the open meetings law.

If you would like to learn more about the open meetings law, DOJ's Office of Open Government offers several open government resources through the Wisconsin DOJ website (https://www.doj.state.wi.us/office-open-government/office-open-government). DOJ provides the full Wisconsin open meetings law and maintains an Open Meetings Law Compliance Guide on its website.

Thank you for your correspondence. We are dedicated to the work necessary to preserve Wisconsin's proud tradition of open government.

The information provided in this letter is provided pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 19.98 and does not constitute an informal or formal opinion of the Attorney General pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 165.015(1).

Dear Mary Scott:

The Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is in receipt of your correspondence, dated March 31, 2021, regarding your claims of "continuous violations of open meetings laws preemptive to and during our village board meetings." You wrote, "[T]he village board convened for a closed session meeting . . . pursuant to Wis. Stat. 19.85(1)(c). . . . Our interim president . . . added a topic of discussion/action without a vote to modify our agenda as posted." You asked that "the OOG becomes involved to direct our village government to engage in lawful procedures to carry out our duties for the village." In your April 12, 2021 correspondence, you wrote, "The violation of open meetings laws continues with missing agendas/missing minutes on our website and agendas that are developed to be intentionally misleading to negatively impact certain individuals and groups."

The DOJ Office of Open Government (OOG) works to increase government openness and transparency with a focus on the Wisconsin Open Meetings Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.81 to 19.98, and the Wisconsin Public Records Law, Wis. Stat. §§ 19.31 to 19.39. As we discussed during our March 31, 2022 telephone conversation, while a portion of your correspondence pertained to the open meetings law, it also discussed issues outside the scope of the OOG's responsibilities. As a result, we are unable to offer you assistance or insight regarding your concerns regarding the village election and alleged harassment. We can, however, provide you with some general information about the open meetings law that we hope you will find helpful.

The open meetings law acknowledges that the public is entitled to the fullest and most complete information regarding government affairs as is compatible with the conduct of governmental business. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(1). All meetings of governmental bodies shall be held publicly and be open to all citizens at all times unless otherwise expressly provided by law. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(2). The provisions of the open meetings law are to be construed liberally to achieve that purpose. Wis. Stat. § 19.81(4).

The open meetings law requires that public notice of all meetings of a governmental body must be given by communication from the governmental body's chief presiding officer or his or her designee to the following: (1) the public; (2) to news media who have filed a written request for such notice; and (3) to the official newspaper (designated under Wis. Stat. §§ 985.04, 985.05, and 985.06) or, if there is no such paper, to a news medium likely to give notice in the area. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(1). In addition to these requirements, other statutes may also set forth the type of notice required for a meeting of a governmental body.

The open meetings law also provides for the timing for releasing agendas, as well as the level of specificity required in agenda items for open meetings, in order to provide proper notice. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(2). Public notice of every meeting of a governmental body must be provided at least 24 hours prior to the commencement of such a meeting. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(3). If, for good cause, such notice is impossible or impractical, shorter notice may be given, but in no case may the notice be less than two hours in advance of the meeting. Id. Furthermore, the law requires separate public notice for each meeting of a governmental body at a time and date "reasonably proximate to the time and date of the meeting." Wis. Stat. § 19.84(4).

Every public notice of a meeting must give the time, date, place, and subject matter of the meeting, including any contemplated closed sessions, and the notice must be in such a form so as to reasonably apprise the public of this information. Wis. Stat. § 19.84(2). The notice requirement gives the public information about the business to be conducted that will alert them to the importance of the meeting, so that they can make an informed decision whether to attend. State ex rel. Badke v. Vill. Bd. of Vill. of Greendale, 173 Wis. 2d 553, 573–78, 494 N.W.2d 408 (1993).

Whether the notice is specific enough is determined on a case-specific basis, based on a reasonableness standard. State ex rel. Buswell v. Tomah Area Sch. Dist., 2007 WI 71, ¶¶ 27–29, 301 Wis. 2d 178, 732 N.W.2d 804. This includes analyzing such factors as the burden of providing more detailed notice, whether the subject is of particular public interest, and whether it involves non-routine action that the public would be unlikely to anticipate. Id. ¶ 28. There may be less need for specificity where a meeting subject occurs frequently, because members of the public are more likely to anticipate that the meeting subject will be addressed, but novel issues may require more specific notice. Id. ¶ 31.

A governmental body, when conducting a meeting, is free to discuss any aspect of any subject identified in the public notice of that meeting, as well as issues reasonably related to that subject, but may not address any topics that are not reasonably related to the information in the notice. Buswell, 2007 WI 71, ¶ 34. There is no requirement, however, that a governmental body must follow the agenda in the order listed on the meeting notice, unless a particular agenda item has been noticed for a specific time. Stencil Correspondence (Mar. 6, 2008). Nor is a governmental body required to actually discuss every item contained in the public notice. It is reasonable, in appropriate circumstances, for a body to cancel a previously planned discussion or postpone it to a later date. Black Correspondence (Apr. 22, 2009); Krueger Correspondence (Feb. 13, 2019).

Moreover, although the open meetings law governs public access to and notice of meetings of governmental bodies, it does not dictate all procedural aspects of how bodies run meetings. For example, the open meetings law does not specify requirements for the process that governmental bodies use to draft or adopt meeting agendas. Further, there is no requirement under the open meetings law that the governmental body approve the agenda at the beginning of each meeting, although such an action would be permissible under the open meetings law. So long as governmental bodies follow the requirements for adequate and timely notice to the public, the notice complies with the open meetings law.

In an effort to increase transparency, DOJ recommends that governmental bodies keep minutes of all meetings. However, there is no requirement under the open meetings law for a governmental body to do so. The open meetings law only requires a governmental body to create and preserve a record of all motions and roll-call votes at its meetings. Wis. Stat. § 19.88(3). This requirement applies to both open and closed sessions. See De Moya Correspondence (June 17, 2009). Written minutes are the most common method used to comply with the requirement, but they are not the only permissible method. It can also be satisfied if the motions and roll-call votes are recorded and preserved in some other way, such as on a tape recording. See I-95-89 (Nov. 13, 1989).

As long as the body creates and preserves a record of all motions and roll-call votes, the Wis. Stat. § 19.88(3) requirement is satisfied, and the open meetings law does not require the body to take more formal or detailed minutes of other aspects of the meeting. Other statutes outside the open meetings law, however, may prescribe particular minute-taking requirements for certain governmental bodies and officials that go beyond what is required by the open meetings law. I-20-89 (Mar. 8, 1989). See, e.g., Wis. Stat. §§ 59.23(2)(a) (county clerk); 60.33(2)(a) (town clerk); 61.25(3) (village clerk); 62.09(11)(b) (city clerk); 62.13(5)(i) (police and fire commission); 66.1001(4)(b) (plan commission); 70.47(7)(bb) (board of review).

Wisconsin Stat. § 19.85 lists exemptions in which meetings may be convened in closed session. Any exemptions to open meetings are to be viewed with the presumption of openness in mind. Such exemptions should be strictly construed. State ex rel. Hodge v. Turtle Lake, 180 Wis. 2d 62, 71, 508 N.W.2d 603 (1993). The exemptions should be invoked sparingly and only where necessary to protect the public interest and when holding an open session would be incompatible with the conduct of governmental affairs. "Mere government inconvenience is . . . no bar to the requirements of the law." State ex rel. Lynch v. Conta, 71 Wis. 2d 662, 678, 239 N.W.2d 313 (1976).

Every meeting must be initially convened in open session. At an open meeting, a motion to enter into closed session must be carried by a majority vote. No motion to convene in closed session may be adopted unless an announcement is made to those present the nature of the business to be considered at the proposed closed session and the specific exemption or exemptions by which the closed session is claimed to be authorized. Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1).

Notice of a contemplated closed session (and any motion to enter into closed session) must contain the subject matter to be considered in closed session. Merely identifying and quoting a statutory exemption is not sufficient. The notice or motion must contain enough information for the public to discern whether the subject matter is authorized for closed session. If a body intends to enter into closed session under more than one exemption, the notice or motion should make clear which exemptions correspond to which subject matter.

Furthermore, some specificity is required since many exemptions contain more than one reason for authorizing a closed session. For example, Wis. Stat. § 19.85(1)(c) provides an exemption for the following: "Considering employment, promotion, compensation or performance evaluation data of any public employee over which the governmental body has jurisdiction or exercises responsibility." Merely quoting the entire exemption, without specifying the portion of the exemption under which the body intends to enter into closed session, may not be sufficient. Only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting.

Moreover, governmental officials must keep in mind that closed meeting exemptions are restrictive, not expansive. Therefore, only aspects of a matter that fall within a specific exemption may be discussed in a closed session. If aspects of a matter do not properly fall within an exemption, those aspects must be discussed in an open meeting.

Under the open meetings law, the Attorney General and the district attorneys have authority to enforce the law. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). The Attorney General normally exercises this authority in cases presenting novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern. As I explained during our telephone conversation, as your matter does not appear to present novel issues of law that coincide with matters of statewide concern, we respectfully decline to file an enforcement action on your behalf at this time.

More frequently, the district attorney of the county where the alleged violation occurred may enforce the law. However, in order to have this authority, an individual must file a verified complaint with the district attorney. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(1). In your April 12, 2021 correspondence, you wrote that you also filed a complaint with the District Attorney's office. If the district attorney refuses or otherwise fails to commence an action to enforce the open meetings law within 20 days after receiving the verified complaint, the individual may bring an action in the name of the state. Wis. Stat. § 19.97(4). (Please note a district attorney may still commence an enforcement action even after 20 days have passed.) Such actions by an individual must be commenced within two years after the cause of action accrues. Wis. Stat. § 893.93(2)(a).

You may wish to contact a private attorney regarding this matter. The State Bar of Wisconsin operates an attorney referral service. The referral service is free; however, a private attorney may charge attorney's fees. You may reach the service using the contact information below:
